

THE GRAND JURY IS CALLED AGAIN FOR WEDNESDAY

Will Continue the Investigation Into the Killing of Ike Buffin

The grand jury will be called to meet again tomorrow to continue the investigation into the killing of Ike Buffin, near Waskom, Saturday night, July 14, county attorney Casey stated yesterday afternoon.

The grand jury rested for a few day to allow Mr. Casey to try the case of Precious Scott, in the district court, and to give him time to secure more witnesses in the investigation of the killing of Buffin.

Mr. Casey states that the grand jury has already examined a large number of witnesses in the case and that quite a number more are yet to be examined.

It is understood that rangers will be maintained at Waskom until the grand jury concludes its investigation in order to prevent any possible violence that might occur.
